Cover Pages

Our cover pages are to reflect major brand colors, the title of the project, any specific references (e.g. project number), the name of the client, the date.

If there are partners and Carter is the lead on the engagement, maintain the Carter brand colors.

Maintain the same coverpage style throughout a specific engagement.

Sharing the same cover page style for multiple engagements is discouraged. Maintaining the same look and feel (fonts, styles, colors for all Carter documents is required).

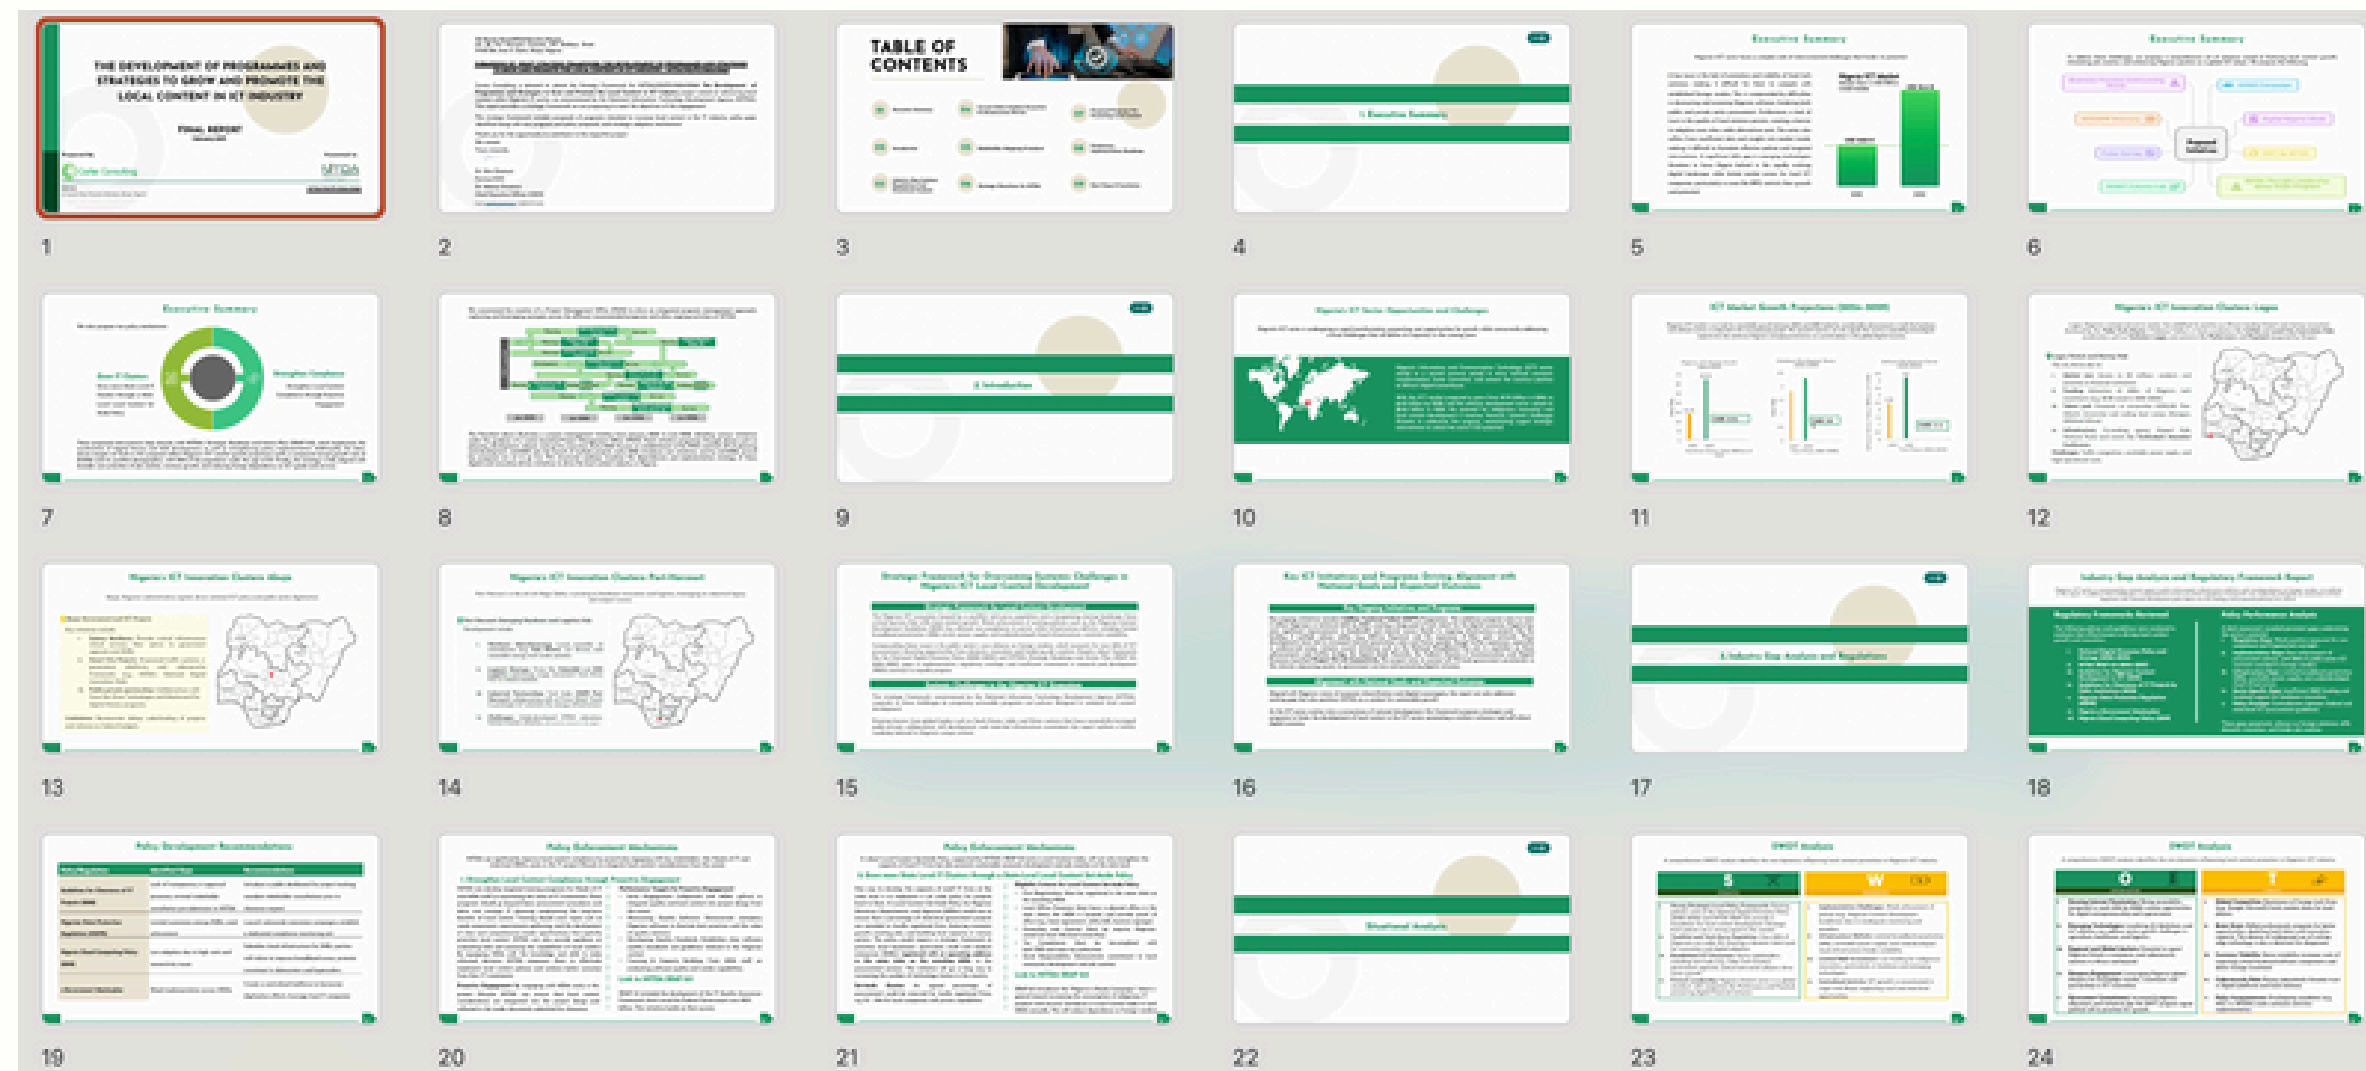

2025

Document Pages

Ensure that document pages are reviewed wholistically before submission.

No tables broken between pages, no headers without text, and other appropriate document formatting guidelines apply.

Think 'gestalt' when finalizing documents.

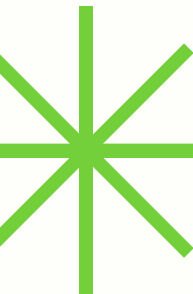

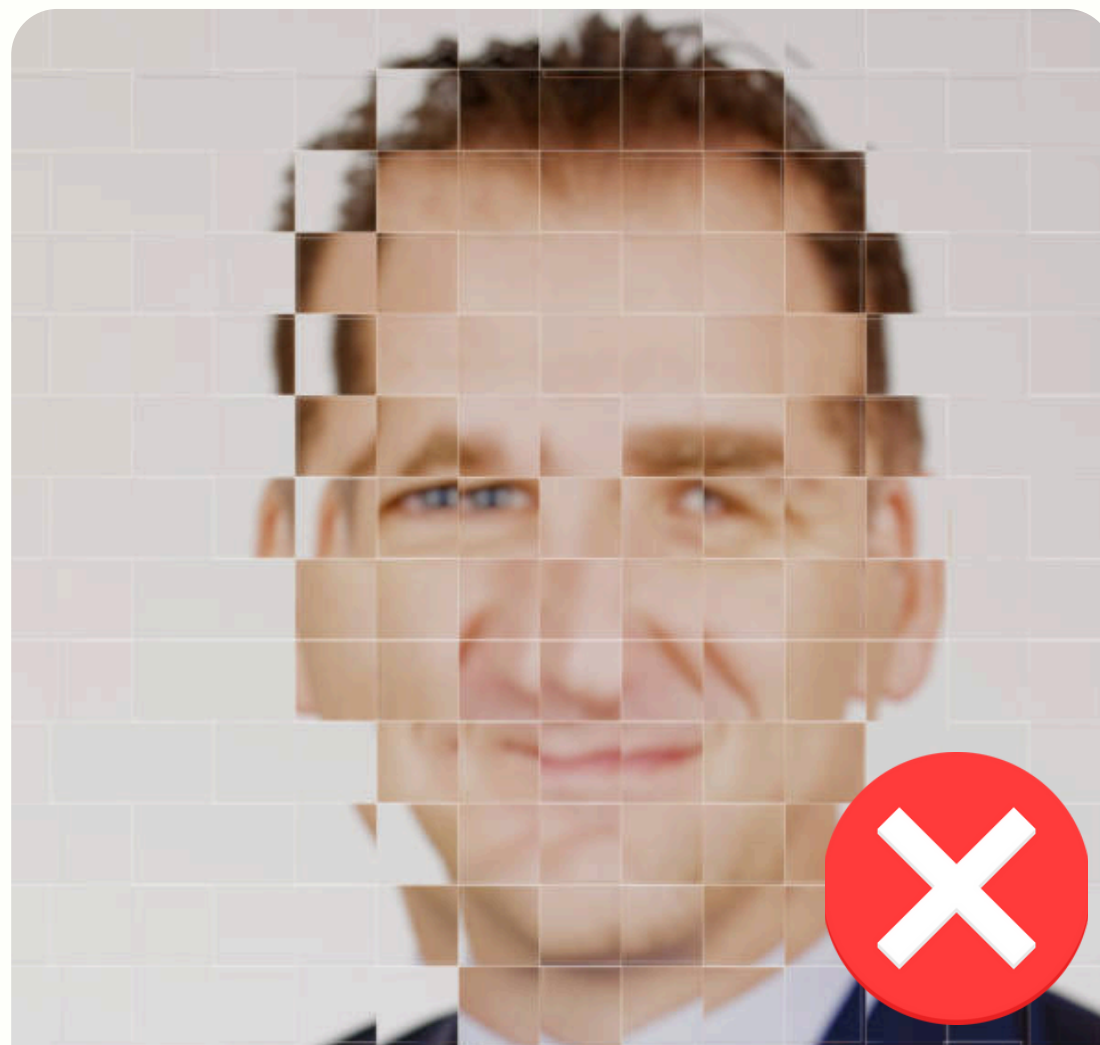

Imagery Style

Our imagery style combines contemporary photography with an artistic flair, embodying innovation and creativity.

Consider the countenance and appearance of any individuals within images carefully before including. Think professional.

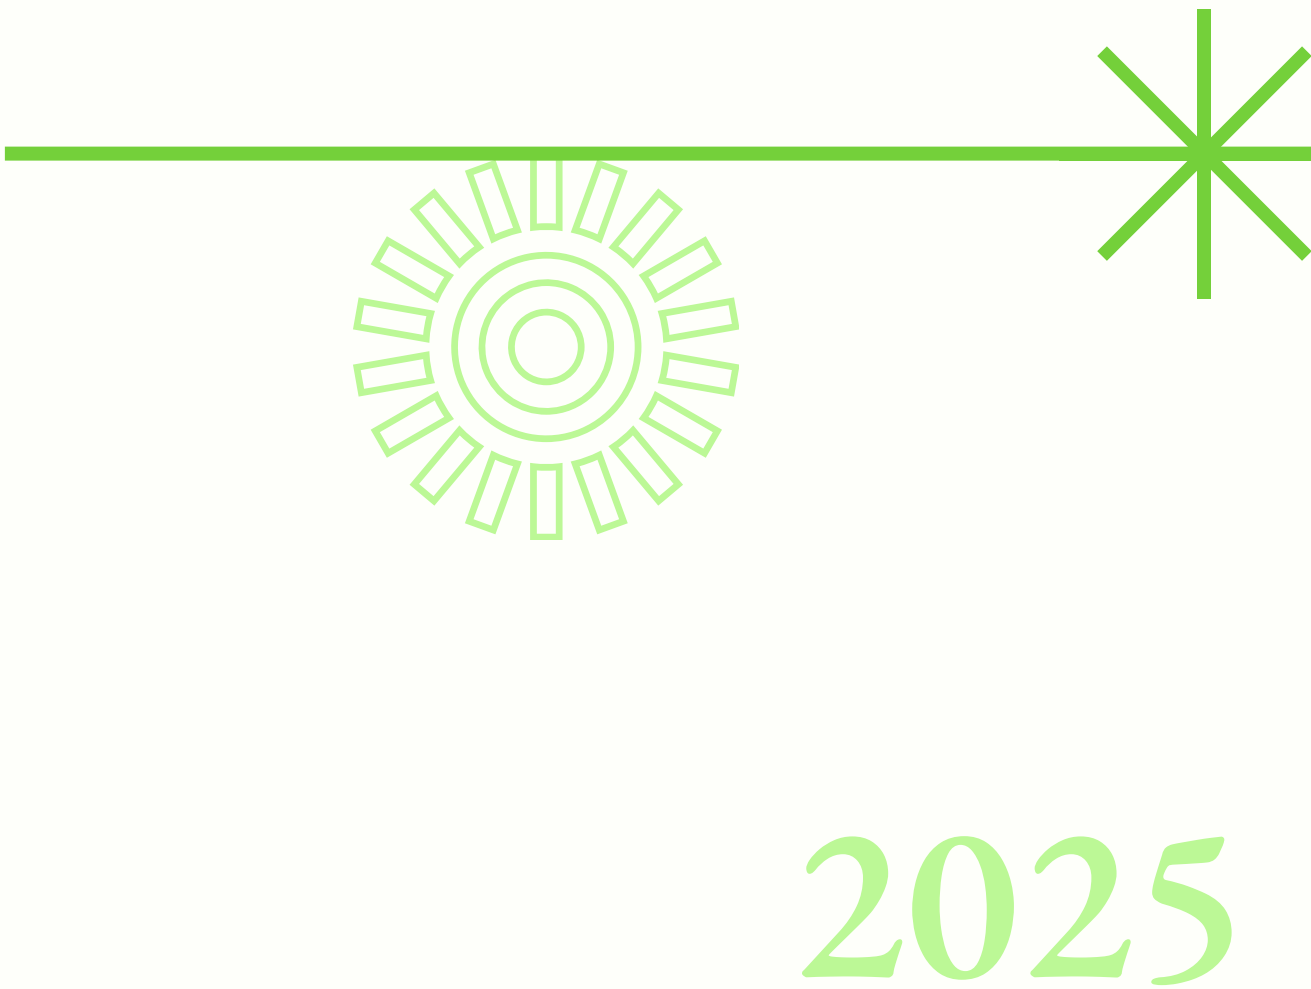

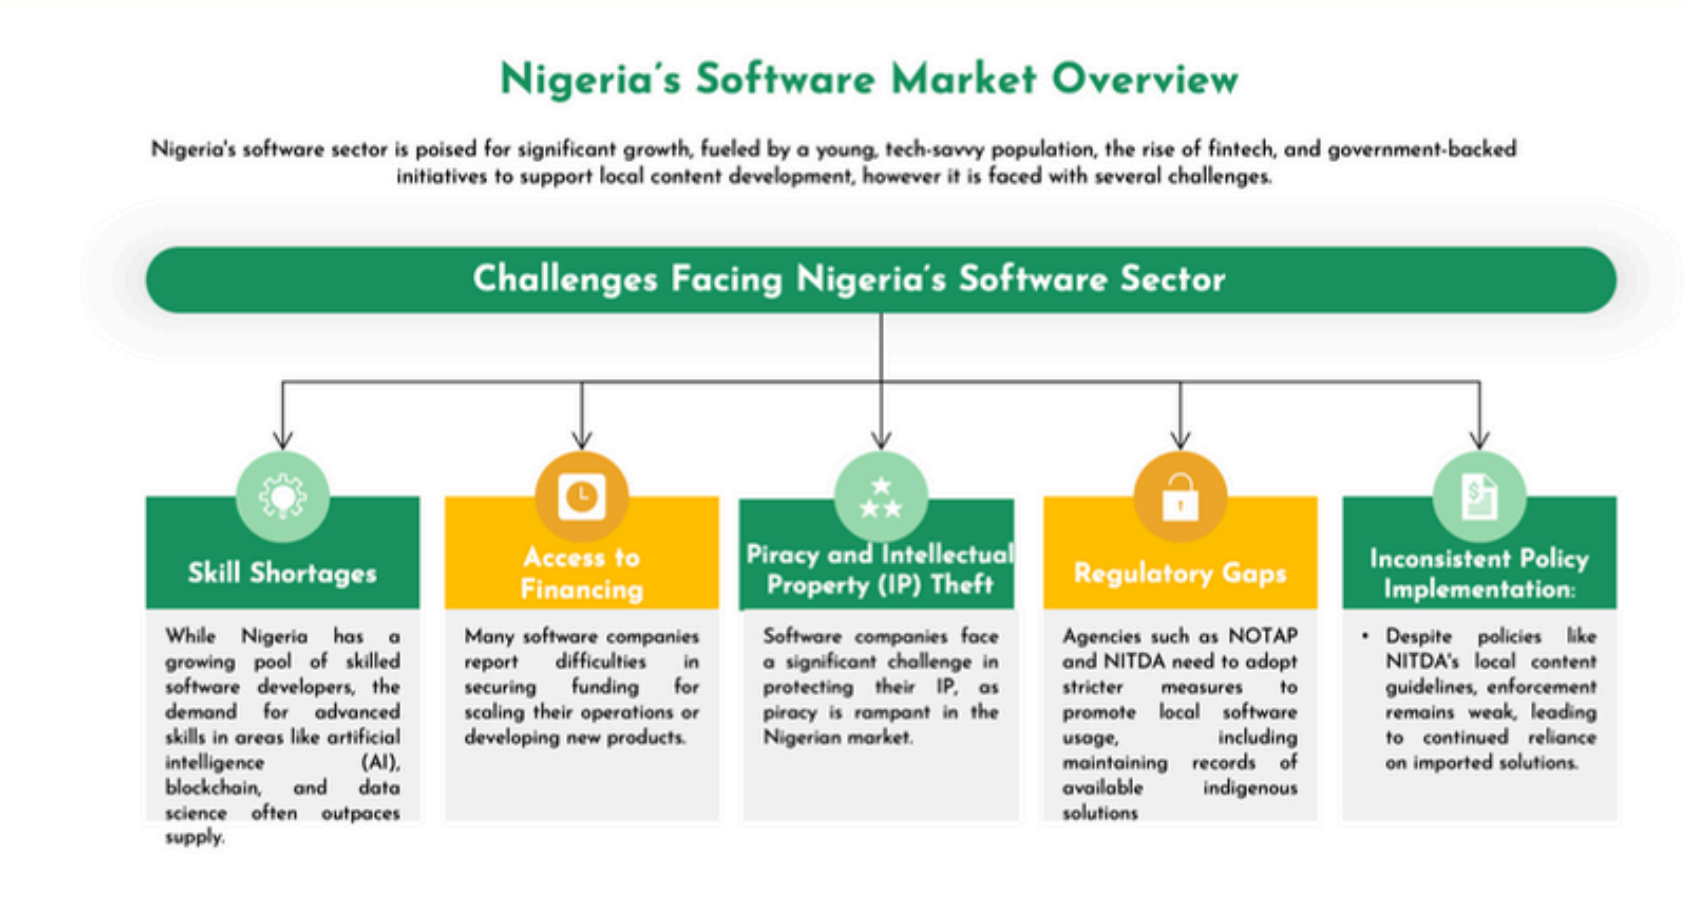

High resolution images must be used.

Graphics and Illustrations

Our documents should include several block graphs and illustrations (e.g. SmartArt) to summarize written text and draw attention to important ideas. The branding of these must be consistent within a document to enable a smooth read for the client.

Where third party graphs are used, ensure to convert to grayscale so as not to use conflicting brand colors.

Tables and Figures

Tables and Figures must always be captioned (use ‘Insert Caption’ in MS Word for automatic captioning and generation of Table of Figures and Tables). Tables and Figures should always be described and referenced within the body of the document e.g. ‘As shown in the Table below’. Avoid “floating tables”.

Tables must always stay on one page. If they must flow into another page, the header must be repeated (Select the first row and enable ‘Repeat header row’ in MS Word).

Non editable tables created outside of MS Word must use the appropriate fonts. Table formatting (spacing, padding, etc) must be consistent within a given document.

Header rows must always show clearly. Suggested that lines are used in tables, not banding.

Autofit tables to content and then modify manually to make it look nice.
